Dear June:

Thank you for your letter forwarding the biographic information on [redacted] His background and qualifications are impressive.

 However, [redacted] our Executive Director stated in his letter to you of 5 July 1983, my front office staff is very small and generally uncompart-mented from the security standpoint. Exposing [redacted] to a wide range of highly sensitive material for a relatively short time before he returns to the private sector would not be compatible with my obligation to protect, to the best of my ability, intelligence sources and methods. I also should note that, although [redacted] currently has an industrial security clearance at the secret level, considerable additional screening still would be required before he could be granted an internal CIA clearance.

Dear Ms. Walker:

As you know, we support the principle of the Presidential Executive Exchange program and believe it offers tangible benefits to both the U.S. Government and the private sector. Therefore, each year we have tried to devise arrangements suitable to both the intent of the program and the needs of the Exchange Executives. Unfortunately, because of the way we are organized and the constraints under which we must operate, this has proved difficult to impossible. Our front offices are very small (usually one special assistant) and operate with minimal compartmentation of even the most sensitive classified material. Even after full security screening, exposing an individual to that material for a relatively short period before he or she returns to the private sector is incompatible with our obligation to protect intelligence sources and methods. The alternative, assigning an Exchange Executive to a lower level or more narrow element of our business, is incompatible with the spirit of the program. For these reasons, we have reluctantly concluded that, in fairness to all concerned, it would be wise to discontinue our involvement in the program.

Sincerely,

Executive Director

Dear Mr. Casey: Bill

I am sending, for your review, the Biographical Information on one of our particularly outstanding Presidential Exchange Executives,

I would appreciate your giving him careful consideration for placement on your staff at the Central Intelligence Agency. I realize that your concern in the past with placement of our executives has been the difficulty of time involved in getting top-secret clearances; however, presently has secret clearance and has had top-secret clearance in the past.

Thank you for your attention to this candidate and I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Cordially,

June G. Walker
